The Berkshire Headset Telephone complete with GN Netcom Headset

Headsets are now widely accepted as essential equipment for telephone users who regularly handle a high call volume. The benefits in comfort, productivity and noise reduction are so strong that a headset telephone is the obvious choice for call-centre/teleworker environments. Ascom and GN Netcom, two of the world's leading manufacturers of telephones and headsets, have partnered to offer the Berkshire Headset Telephone, a perfectly matched combination of a quality business telephone and headset in one simple package.

Complete Ease of Use

The flexible nature of the Berkshire Telephone and GN Netcom Headset combination gives users the option of answering or making calls, using either the handset or the headset. The headset is simple to operate, being activated at the press of a button to either answer or make a call and deactivated at the end of the call, by pressing the same button. Swapping of calls from the handset to headset is easily achieved by a single button press; alternatively a call may be passed from the headset to the handset simply by raising the handset, as this switches-off the headset. The volume of the headset earphone may be adjusted via a volume control on the telephone.

Additional Benefits

The combination of the Berkshire Telephone and Optima Headset enables the telephone user to deal with calls in a confidential manner, whilst having both hands free to execute tasks, such as the input and retrieval of data, without having to juggle a telephone handset at the same time. There is also the benefit of easy to use telephone functions; last number redial, mute button, transfer of calls between headset and handset and an indicator light to show when the headset is active.
